FIFTEEN YEAR-OLD Liu Xuyang said he has more than 30 pairs of shoes. But some are old. He doesn't want them any more.

Where should these old shoes go? To the garbage or to be recycled?

This is how Liu began to care about old shoes. He shared his thoughts with his classmates at Beijing No. 35 Middle School, Luo Hao and Yang Mengwei. The three then decided to do some research. They found out that old shoes can pollute the environment if not recycled properly. Earlier this month, their research paper won second prize in the Beijing Youth Science and Invention Competition.

The three first spent two weeks designing a questionnaire on how people deal with old shoes and how the shoes are treated. They gave over 100 questionnaires to the public, to shoemakers, garbage stations and recycling stations.

Doing the survey, They found that on average (平均), a family throws away 5.17 pairs of shoes each year. That means millions of old shoes are thrown away a year around the country.

However, most old shoes are not treated properly, according to the students.

"Usually, the old shoes are just burnt or buried (填埋) with other garbage," said Luo.

Most of the shoes are made of chemical materials. If they are burnt or buried, they can give off gas (气) or other things that pollute the air and rivers, said the students.

They suggest there should be big boxes in cities for people to put old shoes in. The shoes could then be taken to recycling stations to be treated.

On the other hand, the shoemakers, said the students, could use more environment-friendly material to make shoes.

When Wayne Mix was a child in the 1930s, his family sent him to a school for the deaf and blind. He learned American Sign Language. With American Sign Language, deaf people use their hands to communicate. They can spell words with their fingers, or they can use signs for whole words. Wayne communicated with teachers and friends in sign language. He graduated at the age of 20. In those days, people who were deaf did not get jobs and were not part of the community (社区), so Wayne went back to the family farm. His family did not know sign language, so Wayne communicated a little by making simple motions (手势) with his hands. He was never able to tell them his thoughts and feelings.

Wayne's father died in 1971. There was no place for Wayne to live, so they sent him to Mountain Meadows nursing home. He was only 51 and much younger and healthier than the other people in the nursing home, but he was treated like the 80 and 90-year-old people because he did not hear or speak. No one knew that Wayne was able to use sign language.

Twenty-nine years passed slowly and silently for Wayne. Then one day he saw a visitor using sign language with her deaf mother during a visit to the nursing home. He walked up to them and signed, "I'm Wayne Mix. "

Suddenly everything changed for Wayne. He found many people who knew sign language. These people communicated through sign language, e-mail, television with subtitles and a special telephone that prints (打印) the words that are spoken. It was a whole new world for Wayne. Now he could tell people his feelings, his needs, and his thoughts.

The people in Wayne's town were sad about the thousands of days in Wayne's life when no one knew that he could communicate. They wanted to help Wayne to do some of the things he always wanted to do. The workers at the nursing home found out that as a young man he loved to swim, and he loved to see pictures of dolphins swimming. When he started signing again, they asked him where he wanted to go. "Water. " Wayne signed.

Mountain Meadows workers had an idea. "Let's send Wayne to Sea World in San Diego. " They told other people in town about their idea. Many people in Wayne's town and in other states gave money to help Wayne make the trip. The people at Sea World were very kind to Wayne. They let him swim with the dolphins and help them feed all the sea animals. Newspapers wrote about Wayne, so many people gave money to buy him a special TV and a telephone set. These were things Wayne never knew about before.

76. How did Wayne Mix communicate with his teachers in the school?

A. In American Sign Language.

B. By drawing pictures.

- C. By spelling words on their hands. D. By making simple motions.
77. Why did Wayne Mix go to live in the nursing home?
- A. Because his family moved to another town.
- B. Because nobody in his family knew the sign language.
- C. Because his family was not able to provide him a room to live in.
- D. Because he like to talk with the old people living in the nursing home.
78. How did Wayne's life change after he met a visitor using sign language in the nursing home?
- A. He told the visitor who he was.
- B. His life stayed the same as before.
- C. He could send e-mails and make telephones to his new friends.
- D. He could "talk" with people, telling them his needs and feelings.
79. Why did people feel sad after Wayne began to communicate with others again?
- A. Because he was sent to the nursing home at a young age.
- B. Because he failed to communicate with his family for such a long time.
- C. Because he was not able to communicate with others while he could.
- D. Because they were not sure how to look after Wayne later on.
80. Which of the following is NOT true according to the passage?
- A. Wayne tried to find a job after he graduated from the school but failed.
- B. Many people gave money to buy Wayne a special TV and a telephone set.
- C. The nursing home workers sent Wayne to a Sea World to swim.
- D. Wayne Mix lived in silence all his life though many people helped him.

The New York City Marathon was started by a man named Fred Lebow. It began in 1970 as a small, unimportant race. Only 127 people ran, and just 55 of them finished. They ran around Central Park four times. Few people watched them run. However, over the years the marathon grew and became more popular.

Today people come from all over the world to run in the marathon. Runners must be at least 18 years old, but there is no age limit（限制）. In fact, the oldest runner was an 89-year-old man. Recently, more than 27,000 people ran in the New York City Marathon. Large crowds cheered the runners and offered them cold drinks and encouragement.

The course(路线)of the marathon has changed, too. Instead of running around Central Park, the runners go through the five districts of New York City: Queens, Brooklyn, Manhattan, the Bronx, and Staten Island. The marathon begins at the base（基座）of the Verrazano Narrows Bridge in Staten Island. The runners go across the bridge into Brooklyn. Then they go up through Queens and into the Bronx. The marathon finishes in Central Park in Manhattan. The complete course is 26.2 miles, and takes the best runners less than 3 hours.

Although it has changed since 1970, the New York City Marathon is always exciting. Through the years, many unusual events(事件) have happened during the marathon. For example, Pat Tuz and John Weilbaker got married a few minutes before the race. Then they ran the race with their party members. Some people run the whole marathon as a family. Other people run the race backwards.

In the fall of 1992, Fred Lebow, the founder(创始人) of the New York City Marathon, slowly ran his last race. He was very ill with cancer, but he did not want to stop running. In October 1994, Fred died. However, the New York City Marathon, and all its excitement, will continue for many years to come.
