A man with a green bag walked into a doctor's room. "Please sit down. Open your mouth and put out your tongue (舌头)," the doctor said. "OK. You can close your mouth now. It's clear something is wrong with you. You have to do more exercise."

"But, doctor," the man said, "I don't think..."

"Don't tell me what you think," the doctor said. "I am the doctor, not you. I know what you need. I see hundreds of people like you. None of them get any exercise. They sit in offices all day and in front of the television in the evening. What you need is to walk quickly for at least 30 minutes a day."

"Doctor, you don't understand," the man said. "I..."

"I don't want to hear any excuses," the doctor said. "You must find time for exercise. If you don't, you will get fat and have health problems when you are older."

"But I walk every day," the man said.

"Oh, yes, and I know what kind of walking that is. You walk a few meters to the train station from your house, a few more meters from the station to your office, and a few more meters from your office to a restaurant for lunch and back."

"Please listen to me, doctor!" the man shouted, getting angry.

"I'm a mailman," the man continued. "I walk for seven hours every day and I come to send letters."

PEKING Opera used to sound strange to Dou Yi. The 14-year-old Beijinger said whenever she came across Peking Opera on TV , she changed the channel (频道). Like most of today 's teenagers, Dou loves pop music.

But since Dou entered the Xuanwu branch school of Beijing No. 15 Middle School, she has been studying Peking Opera in music class every week.

Dou and her classmates listen to Peking Opera and learn the basics(基础知识) from professional actors. They also sing along with the operas.

"We laugh sometimes because the tunes (声调) are really hard to learn , " said Dou. But she said that now she would watch Peking Opera on TV.

"After all, I am no longer a layman, " she said.

Since 2008 , schools around the country have been teaching students Peking Opera. It 's part of a plan to introduce young people to the country 's artistic traditions. Clearly, Dou's school has been taking the job seriously.

Yang Ning, 14, is Dou's classmate. She has been studying Peking Opera since she was 8. She is a member of the school's Peking Opera club.

Yang said she had learned a lot from Peking Opera.

"I learn a lot of history from the operas , " she said. " I 've also found out about many ancient poems, since there are so many of them in the operas."

Yang doesn't think everyone can learn to sing Peking Opera well , but she does say that it 's helpful for all people to learn about it.

"The more you learn about it , the more you understand it. If people do study it , this old art form won't disappear. It would be a great pity if it did!" she said.

BALTIMORE, MARYLAND — An old postcard changed the lives of an eleven year-old boy and a very sick woman. The postcard had a picture of the steamship Ti tanic. The Titanic was the largest ocean ship in the world. It hit an iceberg (冰山) and sank on April 14,1912. More than 1 , 500 of the 2 , 200 people on the ship were killed.

The postcard was passed from one person to another for more than 80 years : Then it appeared at a card show for people who liked to collect post cards. An eleven-year-old boy, Joey Russell, came to the show with his grandfather. His grandfather knew everything about the Titanic and its trip from England to New York. " Let' s buy that postcard , " he told Joey. " It will be important someday."

Two years later, Joey's grandfather took him on a special trip. They went on a trip to the North Atlantic Ocean to watch as workers pulled the Titanic up from the bottom(底)of the ocean. Joey put his special postcard in his bag for the trip. On the ship, Joey met Edith Haisman. This woman was on the Titanic when it sank. She was one of the people who were res cued. Joey pulled the postcard out of his pocket. " Please sign this , Mrs Haisman , " he said. She was happy to write her name on the back of the postcard.

When Joey got home, he put the postcard away and forgot about it. Then Kate Shelley , one of Joey 's friends , told him that her mother was very sick. She needed an operation , but there was a problem. The operation was very expensive, and the family needed $80,000 to pay for it. Friends and relatives tried to help. But where could they get so much money?

Then when Joey went to see the new movie " Titanic" , he had an idea. " Millions of people are seeing this movie and reading about the Titanic , " Joey thought. He remembered the old postcard with Edith Hais man 's signature on it. " Maybe I can sell it for some money. Then I can help Kate 's mom."

Joey told his mother and father about his idea to help Mrs Shelley. His parents helped him try to sell the postcard to the person who would pay the most money for it. Joey's story was on television and in news papers. Joey and Kate even went to New York to be on a national TV show. After the show, many people called in to offer money for the Titanic card. Someone bought it for $60,000.

Minoru Yamasaki was a well-known American architect(建筑师). He was born in 1912 in Seattle, Washington. His parents came from Japan. Minoru went to college to study architecture. Every summer he worked in a fish factory to help pay for college. Often he worked from four o'clock in the morning until midnight. He slept in a room with 100 other men. Later in life, Yamasaki remembered these times and was always good to his workers.

Yamasaki sometimes dreamed about his work. Once he woke up at three o'clock in the morning. He remembered a building that was in his dream. He got up and started to draw. Yamasaki used a new design for the buildings. These buildings are now the Century Plaza Hotel, and Tower in Los Angeles, California.

Yamasaki was different from other architects. His buildings give people a feeling of peace and happiness. Many of his designs have pools of water, flowers, and windows on the roof to let in light. He always designed buildings to please people. He wanted to give them a place away from the busy ways of modern life.

Yamasaki worked for several companies. But his success began when he started his own company. In 1956, he won the Architect's First Honor Award for his design of an airport in St. Louis, Missouri. He won two more awards over the next five years. In 1962, he designed the World Trade Center in New York. It is very famous.

In 1993, a bomb exploded(炸弹爆炸) in the World Trade Center. But the buildings did not fall down because they had a good design.

Yamasaki had strong opinions about his buildings. They had to be built his way. He refused to change the design of his buildings, even if he lost a job.

Minoru Yamasaki died in 1986. He designed more than 300 buildings. People will enjoy the design and beauty of his buildings for a very long time.

One day a rabbit bought a big balloon. He walked happily with the balloon in the park.
The rabbit enjoyed himself so much that he forgot the balloon in his hand. Suddenly the balloon flew away and went high up into the sky. The rabbit cried and tears ran from his eyes.
At that time, a bird flew over to the rabbit and asked him what happened. The bird flew away after she heard the rabbit' s story.
After a while , the bird brought the balloon back and gave it to the rabbit. The rabbit smiled and said thanks to the bird. They became good friends.
