Bill, Frank and Dave were three brothers. Every year they sent their mother expensive gifts on her birthday. They liked to show her how rich they were.

The eldest brother, Bill, had a lot of money and he wanted his mother to have the most expensive gifts, but he didn't know what to buy. So he put an ad in the newspaper. "Wanted—the greatest gift for my mother."

About a week before his mother's birthday a man came to his office. He brought a big bird.

"This bird," the man said, "can speak ten languages and sing some pop songs."

"Really? I'd like to listen to it," Bill said.

The man made the bird talk in French and tell a joke in Japanese. Then the bird sang a beautiful song. Bill was very happy and paid nine thousand dollars for the bird. The next day Bill sent the bird to his mother with a birthday card.

The day after his mother's birthday he called his mother. "Well, mother" he asked, "What do you think of the bird?"

"Oh, it's very delicious, dear," said his mother.

B

Li Ruyan, 13 and his classmates in Shanghai did something special last summer. They worked in groups with traffic police at different crossroads in the city. Holding small red flags, the students helped keep order and stopped people from jaywalking(乱穿马路).

As part of the school project, Li's school has encouraged its students to do more community(社区)work.

After the half day of exhausting work Li told himself not to jaywalk anymore.

"I think through community work we get to help others and, more importantly, we grow a sense of responsibility(责任感)," he said

Community service is an important part of education for teenagers around the world. In the US and Canada, high school students need to finish 40 hours of community service before graduation. For those Americans who have finished 1,400 hours of community work, they can be awarded nearly $ 5, 000(33, 000 yuan).

Chinese students today do more community work, too. For example, starting from 2010, Sichuan high school students have been asked to do 10 days of community work. It will become part of their school grade.

Qian Lijun, 16, and her classmates in Suzhou, Jiangsu went to a local elder care home this winter. They put Spring Festival couplets (对联) on the walls and cheered up the people living there.

Li Xiaotian, 15, of Anshan said he used to clear flyers (小广告) from telephone poles (电线杆) with his classmates. They brought tools, towels and buckets and worked for three hours under the summer sun. "It was tiring, but seeing the clean poles without ugly ads — we really felt proud," he said.

76. What was the special thing Li Ruyan did last summer?

- A. He joined a special group of Class13.
- B. He become a policeman.
- C. He helped the traffic police at a crossroad.
- D. He stopped people from talking.

77. From this passage we know that _____.

- B. Li Ruyan and his classmates do some community work every day.
- C. Ruyan and his classmates often hold small flags when they cross the roads.
- D. Ruyan and his classmates think it is good for them to do some community work.

78. Community service _____

- A. has become a very important part of education only in China.
- B. is very important in school education in some foreign countries.
- C. is the only part of the school project for teenagers around the world.
- D. needs students to finish at least 1,000 hours of community work.

79. Which of the following is NOT true according to the passage?

- A. The students in Shanghai helped people to keep the traffic rules.
- B. The students in Suzhou visited the old people's home.
- C. The students in Anshan cleaned the walls under the summer sun.
- D. The students in Sichuan sent Spring Festival couplets to the old people.

80. Which of the following is NOT true according to the passage?

- A. Community service helps students grow a sense of responsibility.
- B. Through community work students get to help others and learn something.
- C. Students are now encouraged to do more community work in many school in China.
- D. Students will be awarded much money for doing more community work in Canada and the US.

C.

Can you remember a world before the Internet? If you answer is "no," then you are probably a millennial. Millennials are the new generation of young Americans. They were born between 1982 and 1992. There are 33 million of them, and they are just starting to enter the workforce(劳动力). Many experts believe that millennials are different from young Americans of past generations. They also believe that millenials will change the workforce in important ways.

How are millennials different? They are the first generation born in the computer age. The internet has always been a part of their lives. They spend about 16 hours a week on the Internet, and this doesn't include e-mail. And they spend 72 hours a week using other electronic media(媒体), including mobile phones and video games. They are "nation speakers" of the language of the computer age. People who were born earlier will never be native speakers of that language. Why not? They did not grow up "speaking" it.

How will millennials change the workforce? To answer that question, it is important to understand how millennials use the Internet. They use the Internet to communicate. They visit website such as FaceBook and MySpace every day. They share(分享)ideas, music, information, games, and friendships with people all over the world. When they start working, they will want to share their work and ideas with others.

It is also important to understand the way millennials grew up. Their parents and teachers gave them a lot of attention. They taught them that their opinions were valuable(有价值的). As a result, many millennials are very confident. At work, they will expect their co-workers and bosses to listen to their opinions.

Millennials also grew up with a lot of structure in their lives. Many of them went to school from the age of two or three and played on sports teams. At work, they will expect the rules to be clear. They will also expect a strong but fair boss, like a coach on a sports team. They will follow the person in charge (主管) if he or she is fair. But they will not follow an unfair boss. They will also expect their work to be fun and creative, similar to their experience on a sports team.

These are a few of the changes that experts believe millennials will bring to the American workforce. But the world is changing very fast. There will probably be more changes that are difficult to imagine today.

81. According to the first paragraph of the passage, which of the following is NOT true?

- A. Millennials belong to a new generation.
- B. Millennials were born about ten years ago
- C. Millennials are entering the workforce.
- D. Millennials know little about the world before the Internet.

82. Which is the main reason that make the experts believe millennials are different from young Americans of past generations?

- A. Millennials can speak a better native language.
- B. Millennials grow up with computers and Internet.
- C. Millennials use mobile phones and e-mails often.
- D. Millennials spend long hours playing video games.

83. Why do the millennials expect to share their work and ideas with others?

- A. Because they know how to use the Internet to make new friends.
- B. Because they understand how to communicate with new friends.
- C. Because they grow up sharing ideas, music, information, games, and friendships with others by the Internet.
- D. Because the Internet can provide all the information they need.

84. According to the passage, which of the following is NOT true?

- A. Millennials grow up with more attention from their parents and teachers.
- B. Many millennials are showing more confident than others at work.
- C. Many millennials give more valuable opinions to their co-workers and bosses.
- D. Many of the millennials have had fun and creative experiences when they are on sports teams.

85. From the passage we know that _____.

- A. the number of the millennials had come to 33 million by the end of 1982
- B. most of the millennials learn native computer language in schools.
- C. millennials require their bosses to be healthier and the rules clearer at work
- D. more changes will probably be brought to the American workforce by millennials

X.任务型阅读。阅读短文，按要求完成各题

Close your eyes. Think about a happy memory. What do you see? What do you smell? Do memories smell? Harald Vogt and Avery Gilbert think so. Smell and memory are very important to them. Why? They sell smells.

Who do they the smells to? And how can they sell smell? Businesses come to Vogt and Gilbert for help. Vogt and Gilbert find a smell to go with the business's product. For example, Vogt and Gilbert worked with an expensive hotel in New York City. They developed a smell like expensive cologne(科隆香水)for the hotel's owners. Then they put it in the air of the hotel hallway. Why did they choose the smell of cologne? A lot of businessmen stay at that hotel. The hotel's owners want their guests(客人)to feel like they are in an expensive men's club. And rich men wear expensive cologne.

Using smell to sell things is not new. Bakers know that the smell of baking bread brings in customers. They always make sure that people on the street can smell the baking bread. Chocolate makers do the same thing. And of course perfume (香水)makers sell smells.

In the past, only the food and perfume businesses used smell to sell their products. But today, more and more businesses are trying it, from hotels to airlines(航空公司). Some companies put a special smell on the advertisement that they send to customers. For example, one car company uses a perfume on their booklet that smells like a new car.

But do smells really sell? The answer seems to be yes. Smells become a part of our memories. And memory is important in sales, why? When customers remember the name of a product, they usually choose it again. But there are a lot of choices these days, so it isn't easy to remember product names. That's why smell is important. It helps people remember.

In the future, will different computers and televisions have different smells? Vogt and Gilbert think so. They are sure that one day, most businesses will use smell to sell.

Bill, Frank and Dave were three brothers. Every year they sent their mother expensive gifts on her birthday. They liked to show her how rich they were.

The eldest brother, Bill, had a lot of money and he wanted his mother to have the most expensive gifts, but he didn't know what to buy. So he put an ad in the newspaper. "Wanted—the greatest gift for my mother."

About a week before his mother's birthday a man came to his office. He brought a big bird.

"This bird," the man said, "can speak ten languages and sing some pop songs."

"Really? I'd like to listen to it," Bill said.

The man made the bird talk in French and tell a joke in Japanese. Then the bird sang a beautiful song. Bill was very happy and paid nine thousand dollars for the bird. The next day Bill sent the bird to his mother with a birthday card.

The day after his mother's birthday he called his mother. "Well, mother" he asked, "What do you think of the bird?"

【2012 山东济南】B

Li Ruyan, 13 and his classmates in Shanghai did something special last summer. They worked in groups with traffic police at different crossroads in the city. Holding small red flags, the students helped keep order and stopped people from jaywalking(乱穿马路).

As part of the school project, Li's school has encouraged its students to do more community(社区)work.

After the half day of exhausting work Li told himself not to jaywalk anymore.

"I think through community work we get to help others and, more importantly, we grow a sense of responsibility(责任感)," he said.

Community service is an important part of education for teenagers around the world. In the US and Canada, high school students need to finish 40 hours of community service before graduation. For those Americans who have finished 1,400 hours of community work, they can be awarded nearly $ 5, 000(33, 000 yuan).

Chinese students today do more community work, too. For example, starting from 2010, Sichuan high school students have been asked to do 10 days of community work. It will become part of their school grade.

Qian Lijun, 16, and her classmates in Suzhou, Jiangsu went to a local elder care home this winter. They put Spring Festival couplets (对联) on the walls and cheered up the people living there.

Li Xiaotian, 15, of Anshan said he used to clear flyers (小广告) from telephone poles (电线杆) with his classmates. They brought tools, towels and buckets and worked for three hours under the summer sun. "It was tiring, but seeing the clean poles without ugly ads — we really felt proud," he said.

76. What was the special thing Li Ruyan did last summer?

- A. He joined a special group of Class13.

- D. Students will be awarded much money for doing more community work in Canada and the US.

【答案】CDBDD

【2012 山东济南】C.

Can you remember a world before the Internet? If you answer is "no," then you are probably a millennial. Millennials are the new generation of young Americans. They were born between 1982 and 1992. There are 33 million of them, and they are just starting to enter the workforce(劳动力). Many experts believe that millennials are different from young Americans of past generations. They also believe that millenials will change the workforce in important ways.

How are millennials different? They are the first generation born in the computer age. The internet has always been a part of their lives. They spend about 16 hours a week on the Internet, and this doesn't include e-mail. And they spend 72 hours a week using other electronic media(媒体), including mobile phones and video games. They are "nation speakers" of the language of the computer age. People who were born earlier will never be native speakers of that language. Why not? They did not grow up "speaking" it.

How will millennials change the workforce? To answer that question, it is important to understand how millennials use the Internet. They use the Internet to communicate. They visit website such as FaceBook and MySpace every day. They share(分享)ideas, music, information, games, and friendships with people all over the world. When they start working, they will want to share their work and ideas with others.

It is also important to understand the way millennials grew up. Their parents and teachers gave them a lot of attention. They taught them that their opinions were valuable(有价值的). As a result, amny millennials are very cinfident. At work, they will expect their co-workers and bosses to listen to their opinions.

Millennials also grew up with a lot of structure in their lives. Many of them went to school from the age of two or three and played on sports teams. At work, they will expect the rules to be clear. They will also expect a strong but fair boss, like a coach on a sports team. They will follow the person in charge (主管) if he or she is fair. But they will not follow an unfair boss. They will also expect their work to be fun and creative, similar to their experience on a sports team.

These are a few of the changes that experts believe millennials will bring to the American workforce. But the world is changing very fast. There will probably be more changes that are difficult to imagine today.

81. According to the first paragraph of the passage, which of the following is NOT true?

- A. Millennials belong to a new generation.
- B. Millennials were born about ten years ago.
- C. Millennials are entering the workforce.
- D. Millennials know little about the world before the Internet.

82. Which is the main reason that make the experts believe millennials are different from young Americans of past generations?

- A. Millennials can speak a better native language.
- B. Millennials grow up with computers and Internet.
- C. Millennials use mobile phones and e-mails often.
- D. Millennials spend long hours playing video games.

83. Why do the millennials experct to share their work and ideas with others?

- A. Because they know how to use the Internet to make new friends.
- B. Because they understand how to communicate with new friends.
- C. Because they grow up sharing ideas, music, information, games, and friendships with others by the Internet.
- D. Because the Internet can provide all the information they need.

84. According to the passage, which of the following is NOT true?

- A. Millennials grow up with more attention from their parents and teachers.
- B. Many millennials are showing more confident than others at work.
- C. Many millennials give more valuable opinions to their co-workers and bosses.

D. Many of the millennials have had fun and creative experiences when they are on sports teams.

85. From the passage we know that _____.

A. the number of the millennials had come to 33 million by the end of 1982

B. most of the millennials learn native computer language in schools.

C. millennials require their bosses to be healthier and the rules clearer at work

Close your eyes. Think about a happy memory. What do you see? What do you smell? Do memories smell? Harald Vogt and Avery Gilbert think so. Smell and memory are very important to them. Why? They sell smells.

Who do they sell the smells to? And how can they sell a smell? Businesses come to Vogt and Gilbert for help. Vogt and Gilbert find a smell to go with the business's product. For example, Vogt and Gilbert worked with an expensive hotel in New York City. They developed a smell like expensive cologne(科隆香水)for the hotel's owners. Then they put it in the air of the hotel hallway. Why did they choose the smell of cologne? A lot of businessmen stay at that hotel. The hotel's owners want their guests(客人)to feel like they are in an expensive men's club. And rich men wear expensive cologne.

Using smell to sell things is not new. Bakers know that the smell of baking bread brings in customers. They always make sure that people on the street can smell the baking bread. Chocolate makers do the same thing. And of course perfume(香水)makers sell smells.

In the past, only the food and perfume businesses used smell to sell their products. But today, more and more businesses are trying it, from hotels to airlines(航空公司). Some companies put a special smell on the advertisement that they send to customers. For example, one car company uses a perfume on their booklet that smells like a new car.

But do smells really sell? The answer seems to be yes. Smells become a part of our memories. And memory is important in sales, why? When customers remember the name of a product, they usually choose it again. But there are a lot of choices these days, so it isn't easy to remember product names. That's why smell is important. It helps people remember.

In the future, will different computers and televisions have different smells? Vogt and Gilbert think so. They are sure that one day, most businesses will use smell to sell.
