There are many reasons why I encourage people to travel, and I know that the experience will make one a better person.

I remember when I was traveling that I began to know the world better. The world is not just about me, my small town and home. Although you will meet different people from all over the world, you will realize that people are similar in their dreams, hopes, and feelings. Enjoy exploring the different cultures, and you will also find that people are different in some of the things they do and how they live. Once you understand their ways, it need not be strange or scary. Often we read stories about other cultures in books. Only when we visit their areas, do we find that those stories are something wrong.

One thing you may find out is that there are problems all over the world. We can not just get money to send to those areas and hope that will work them out. The world should get involved (干预) and help wherever there are problems. People everywhere should be given a chance. It is so easy to ignore (忽视) this if one does not travel and explore. One can look around and see that so many people have many challenges worse than ours. One can realize that sometimes our biggest problems are not that big after all.

On your journey you will meet lots of new friends. Talking to strangers and finding about their lives in a great way to spend your time. You will certainly be more confident after having to cope with problems and make many decisions along the way.

When you travel, you have to be on your own in some situation. You will surprise yourself by how well you can do that. All your special experiences could make an interesting book to read. It would be filled with all your adventures and special memories.

Traveling around and seeing so much happening in the world around us is a wonderful experience. If we could all just travel a little more and share our experiences, we would all be better people and the world would be a better place.

76. From Paragraph 2, we can learn that _____.

- A. people around the world are the same in their hopes
- B. books always tell us wrong stories about cultures
- C. traveling can help us better understand the world

- D. people in different places have strange living habits
77. According to Paragraph 3, we can help the areas in need by _____.
A. sending them money B. offering them chances
C. looking around D. giving them challenges
78. The expression “cope with” in Paragraph 4 most probably means “_____”.
A. solve B. avoid
C. meet D. cover
79. Which of the following would be the best title of the passage?
A. People in the World Are Family.
B. Traveling Helps One Make More Friends.
C. People in the World Share One Dream.
D. Traveling Makes One a Better Person.
80. What’s the writer’s purpose of writing the passage?
A. To share his travel experiences with other people.
B. To encourage more people to travel around.
C. To show how traveling can change the world.
D. To tell people how to travel around the world.

A teacher says music education in school has kind of turned into amusement. Classroom lessons focus heavily on pop while understanding the classical(古典的) art form and its history should be paid attention to.

A professor in music and music education at the University of NSW, Robert Walker .argues that all students should study the works of Western classical composers such as Haydn and Tchaikovsky.

Professor Walker says students are missing out on an important part of the culture heritage(遗产)because they fail to study classical music ,as the little music that children learn at school is mainly pop. The lack(缺乏) of music teaching is serious, especially in government schools where there are not enough specialist(专业的) music teachers.

A national review in 2005 made 15 suggestions, but Professor Walker said it still failed to deal with the lack of classical music taught in schools.

“I’m not against pop music, but it’s very simple and not difficult either to play or to sing,” Professor Walker says. “But classical music is challenging and although it is part of America’s culture heritage, most children learn it only through Hollywood films.”

“At least children ought to know what’s happening in Western culture. It’s part of culture heritage,” he says. “Asian students know more about Western classical music than most children in the West.”

Professor Walker has taught music and music teachers in Britain, Canada and Australia and is a former chief(首席的) examiner for the International Baccalaureate and a former chairman of the research committee of the International Society for Music Education. Professor Walker says no school curriculum(课程) in Australia lists a piece of music that children should study, such as the Mendelssohn’s.

“This lack of standard texts means that some children can be brought up totally on Western classical music, others on Elvis Presley, or on any music the teacher wants to teach. The situation should be changed as soon as possible,” he says.

81. What’s the problem in music education in Professor Walker’s opinion?

- A. Children know nothing about their culture heritage.
- B. Classical music education isn’t valued in schools.
- C. Pop music is simple and not difficult to play and sing.
- D. Australia schools need more specialist music teachers.

82. According to the passage, students should study classical music because it is _____.

- | | |
|-------------------------------|------------------------------|
| A. part of culture heritage | B. good for their growing up |
| C. difficult to play and sing | D. popular only in Asia |

83. According to the passage, which one is different from the other three?

- A. Haydn B. Tchaikovsky C. Mendelssohn D. Elvis Presley

84. Which of the following statements is NOT true about Professor Walker?

- A. He worries about the music education in schools.
- B. He thinks pop music teaching shouldn't be allowed.
- C. He is well known in Western classical music teaching.
- D. He has worked in Britain, Canada and Australia.

85. From the last paragraph, we can learn that _____.

- A. music teachers should teach anything that they like
- B. most children today are brought up by their music teachers.
- C. music teachers shouldn't teach the music of Elvis Presley at all
- D. children's music education today depends on their teacher's taste

作文:

My favourite teacher.

My favorite teacher is Zhang Shishun. He teaches us English and he has short hair. He's of medium build. He likes reading all kinds of books, writing notes and keeping doing exercises every day. He dislikes smoking, drinking wine and talking idly. He's outgoing and energetic. He can make a speech for four hours. He's very patient and is never angry with his students.

He has a positive way of looking at his students who have difficulties learning. He said, "I'm happy to have such students. It's these students that give, chance to show my ability to educate them." I'm not good at learning at the beginning. By and by, I make great progress because he keeps encouraging me and never say something bad to me.
